

DRAINAGE SYSTEM SURVEY & DESIGN WORKSHOP REGISTRATION PLUS OPTIONAL ILICA CERTIFICATION

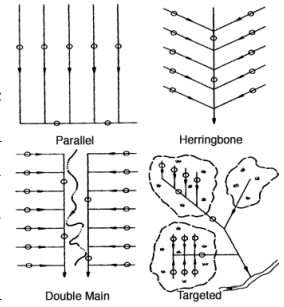

March 10 - 11, 2010 - University of Illinois South Farm

This workshop will be facilitated by Dr. Richard Cooke of the University of Illinois, whose ongoing research in drainage systems makes him one of the nations most knowledgeable authorities in this field. The workshop will start on Wednesday and includes field survey exercise (weather permitting) followed by a classroom session on designing a system from survey data. See tentative class agenda below, shaded in gray. Lunch will be provided for both days.

ILICA Certification Review and Testing will be offered at the conclusion of Thursday's session for those interested in obtaining ILICA certification or expanding their classifications, providing sufficient registrations are received. There is no charge for additional classifications, however, other charges are listed below.

There are many hotels in the area but the Hawthorne Suites have offered us the "University Guest Pays Rate" of $94.99 for a king suite and $99.99 for a double queen suite. You must ask for the "University Guest Pays Rate" when you book your room. The Hawthorne Suites is located at: 101 Trade Centre Dr. Champaign, IL and their phone number is (217) 398-3400.

University of Illinois South Farm

The best description of the U of I Ag & Biological Engineering South Farm Research Site is near the intersection of Race St. (1350 E) and Curtis Road (1300 N).

Dr. Cooke recommends taking Windsor to Race Street then following Race south to the site.

However, depending on which direction you are coming from, other major thoroughfares are shown on the maps which may provide a more direct route.

Please contact the ILICA office at 309-446-3700 if you have questions or require additional information.
